The UNL Department of History has teamed up with Love's Jazz and Art Center, the Great Plains Black History Museum, the Malcolm X Memorial Foundation and NET for an innovative effort to uncover, preserve and share North Omaha’s rich, but often hidden, African American history. Community members are invited to bring their letters, photos, documents, heirlooms or any other artifacts that help tell the story of African Americans in North Omaha and across the country. Professional Historians will be on hand to talk about the “historical value” of your artifacts. Your objects will also be digitized and included in a unique web-based public archive of African American History in North Omaha, available for free to teachers, students and everyday people. You and your object may even be featured in an upcoming NET Television segment!

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC. COME ONE, COME ALL!
